NEW YORK: Cool weather continued through the week ending April 3, with average temperatures ranging from the mid 20's to mid 40's. Some areas received snow later in the week. Maple syrup producers continued to boil sap. Apple, onion, and potato growers continued moving their crops from storage for grading and packing. Other major activities included tending livestock, spreading manure, attending meetings and trade shows, preparing equipment for plantings, and finalizing plans for the upcoming season.
